Every law and each legal system has a significant role in shaping the society. Law creates stories and carves the pattern of life's event. It is well known that the history of every society largely depends on the types of law and legal system adopted by the respective community/society at large. Law is not confined to the court room hearing, or parliamentary discussion, not only in police station or finance department. It is everywhere. It is in marriage, in divorce too. It is in the pain of all the country wo/men abroad working to earn and live far from home, in the history of unification and conquest, in the silence of many raped and even of those convicted wrongly.
